Earth Is Heated Unevenly

- The Sun heats Earth unevenly.

- Places near Earth’s equator are generally warmer than the poles.

- Places near Earth’s equator change less in temperature from winter to summer than places near the poles do.

- When it’s summer north of the equator, it’s winter south of the equator. When it’s winter in the north, it’s summer in the south.